DENVER SOCIETY HAS A STREET FAIR

Local Papers Seem to Think the "Set" Is None Too Particular.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 24.—"Oh, the things that are committed in the name of charity," one is prompted to exclaim after seeing Denver "society" run a street fair. One wonders if anybody but society people could do these things and have them pass muster. As a visitor to "the Streets of All Nations" in the Auditorium remarked, "If the Horseshoe union or the Woodmen of the World were to give a social affair and conduct it as society conducts this big event, the place would be pulled by the police for rowdiness and 'society' would turn up its dainty noses with scorn."

"Society is none too temperate at the big 'Streets of Nations' show, but who wants to be a camel when there are several French little society girls not nearly old enough to vote carrying real gingerale highballs and cream de menthe, to say nothing of other exhilarating things right to your table and asking, 'is that all?'"

This is the way Leola Allard, society writer on the Post, deals with the event. Continuing, she says: "The French parties (both society and real excitement). Why, do you know that the people stood on chairs and looked over the rail walls of the cafe-theater, and there wasn't an entrance that wasn't so crowded you could hardly pass. Little men in high school, big men with whiskers, men with their hats on and men with their hats off, to say nothing of all the other men, swarmed about the French cafe like bees, and the eternal feminine and scruples about the drinks it took, for wasn't it all within the chaperonage of the best women in Denver?"

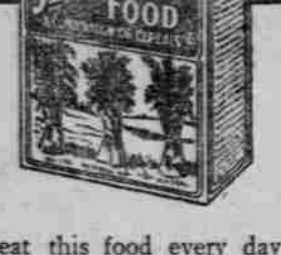

"Women Onlookers Envious." "Clad in brilliant red-satin dresses, silk stockings, and anklets around with real satin ribbons, the girls of the French booth danced about on a stage and made the women look envious and the men look admiring. Irene Kuykendall, as a spring dancer and Hazel O'Brien, her partner (both society girls), were the most delicate bits of society, and how they did dance! The audience in the cafe theater demanded more, and they merely got a cordial smile."

"Barked Like Pirates." "Bert Stearns is the handsomest man on the premises and he would be difficult to believe that he wouldn't be capable of earning a living, no matter what he attempted, because he worked last night. He and Frank Loveland had a rushing business and they barked like ex-midway pirates, and never seemed to tire of gathering in dimes and quarters—one ticket a dime, two for a quarter."

TWO PENNSYLVANIA COUPLES
SPEND DAY IN EL PASO.
Capt. Geo. L. Weaver and wife, who have been touring the west and northwest, spent Sunday in El Paso and Juarez. Capt. Weaver, formerly of the Pennsylvania national guard, is superintendent of the state institution for the feeble minded at Pottsville, Pa., and Dr. McDowell is located at Franklin. Capt. Weaver says there are 1500 children in the institution of which he is the head.

The two couples have been in the northwest on a pleasure trip for over a month and went as far north as Victoria and Vancouver, B. C. They also visited the Grand Canyon in Arizona.

PETE KEIN COMING BACK.
Peter E. Kein, a former El Paso business man who has been in Alaska for several years, is planning to return to El Paso to live. He was in the jewelry business here and in Alaska, but will retire from active business and devote his time to his really holdings here.

SENTENCE SERMONS IN PULPITS OF EL PASO

Prayer is not simply a privilege, but a divinely enjoined duty which we owe to God.—Rev. Robert Bruce Smith, First Baptist church.

What is wanted in religion today is not new forms, new organizations and new machinery, but the spirit of Jesus Christ.—Rev. C. L. Overstreet, First Presbyterian church.

Do the right thing with Jesus Christ and you will get everything that is really worth having for time as well as for eternity.—Rev. Kenneth Brown, East El Paso Presbyterian church.

God is as truly the author and giver of the law of the survival of the fittest as he was of the ten commandments which he gave to Moses in person.—Rev. A. N. Evans, Highland Park Methodist church.

It was imperatively necessary that Christ be both divine and human that he might mediate between God and man, and as our high priest make atonement for us.—Rev. E. E. Baker, Westminster Presbyterian church.

"All things work together for good to them that love God," not as man counts good from the earthly side, but as God counts good, that is eternal good, from the heavenly side.—Rev. F. W. Otto, First Methodist church.

A convention, orderly, presenting a splendid report, great addresses, devotion in character and forward looking.—Rev. Perry James Rice, First Christian church, giving report of Christiana missionary conference at Topeka, Kan.

If we can only discover the way by which which the 5,000,000 Baptists of this country unite together upon the same work they can bring the whole human race to Jesus Christ in seven years.—Rev. R. T. Hanks, Calvary Baptist church.

When it can be shown that God could have asked infinitely more of us than he does ask it quite overcomes the strangeness of appearance when we think that man gives little in giving all.—Rev. Caspar S. Wright, Trinity Methodist church.

DR. SMITH TAKES LEAVE OF EL PASO

Pastor of Baptist Church Leaves City to Return to Virginia.

Standing in the pulpit which he has occupied since the erection of the First Baptist church, Dr. Robert Bruce Smith bade farewell to his congregation Sunday evening. On Tuesday evening, accompanied by his family, he will leave over the Rock Island for Parkersburg, W. Va., by way of St. Louis, having accepted a call to Parkersburg, this boyhood home.

The text of Dr. Smith's last discourse at the First Baptist church was the 11th verse of the 15th chapter of the gospel of St. John, the words of the Lord as he was about to take leave of his apostles.

Dr. Smith would not permit the people of his church to tender a parting reception to him and his family before their departure. Explaining this, he stated: "I did not come to El Paso that way and I don't want to go away in that manner. The privilege of gathering together with you is more to me than any reception with unsecured songs and funny recitations."

The record which has been made by the retiring pastor of the First Baptist church is unique. Coming to El Paso when it was a typical western border city, with all of the vices and disregard of law, when there was no church in the city worthy of the name, he leaves it a city of churches. The churches that have been organized and built under Dr. Smith's pastorate in El Paso are the First Baptist church, the Houston Square Baptist church, Highland Park Baptist church, East El Paso Baptist church, the Mexican Baptist church and the negro Baptist church. The church has also established a Christian mission, with two night sessions weekly.

The First Baptist church of El Paso is the third pastorate that Dr. Smith has held in his life. He was ordained as a minister at the age of 19 and after a few years at Parkersburg, W. Va., he was called to New York city. From that city he was called to the western frontier to do pioneer work. When he came to El Paso there were 600 professional gamblers in the city according to grand jury records.

The congregation passed lengthy resolutions on the good work Dr. Smith has done in El Paso.

TELLTALE LETTERS SEIZED BY POLICE

Society Women in Washington Upset for Fear of Exposure.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—The capital of the nation is stirred to its utmost over the letters of a fortune teller, seized by the police; letters written by the elite of the nation's social center to a man whose occult powers they sought in matters of love and finance.

On the discretion of two central office detectives hang the reputations and fortunes of many Washington women of wealth and social position. If letters seized when the occult studio of Leon Devoux was raided yesterday are made public, the world will know a great deal more of the inner lives of Washington's elite than is whispered over the tea-cups.

Many of the letters held by the central office detectives were written by women whose husbands are wealthy and have high positions. They live in Connecticut avenue, Massachusetts avenue and other fashionable thoroughfares. Some of the epistles are signed, "Yours in Holy Occult Love."

"We can't make these names public," said detective Burlingame. "If we did we would have a half dozen suicides within a day."

One of the letters, so closely guarded in the central office safe, tells which of the queens of the nation's capital of over $100,000 to the soothsayer if he could bring an heir to her husband's millions. Another tells of a woman who stole a diamond ring from her husband to satisfy the demands of the seer, and pleads with the man to throw his influence so that her husband will not miss the ring.

One other letter kept secret by the police, comes from another city. It is written by the young wife of an aged and dotting millionaire husband.

From the text of the letter it appears that the aged man is expecting to adopt an infant orphan. The woman wishes to know whether under these circumstances the child can inherit its foster father's wealth. The letter adds: "When I get all of his money I shall be happy."

Already two women are suffering from nervous prostration, brought on by the fear that their rashness will be discovered. One is a clerk in a government department, who signs her letters "Mrs. L." and who sought Devoux's influence in the good graces of her chief.

LANIER of the CAVALRY

By General Charles King, U. S. A.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company.

"She went to speak with Mrs. Standard, but said ladies were there, so she came back awhile ago. I could hear her crying in her room before she went the second time." And poor Mayhew's head was drooping.

"And you wish me to see her tonight?"

"If you'd be so good, doctor. She'll soon be home. I was going over in search of her now."

"Wait," said Ennis. "Listen!" There was a flurry among the revelers a few rods away. Two men had run toward the corner of the nearest barrack, looming black against the northward sky. Other could be seen hurrying after them. Then—could it be? Yes, sharp and clear came the sound of a shot from away over toward the hospital—another nearer, another still nearer—and distant shouts and then the blare of the trumpet.

"Come on! It's fire!" said Ennis and sprang in pursuit of the leaders. "Fire!" echoed the cry from barrack to barrack as the men poured forth into the night, and then as Ennis rounded the corner and came in full view of the wide open parade with the long line of quarters beyond his heart leaped for his throat in wild dismay. "My God, lieutenant, it's your house!"

And Bob's all alone! sobbed Ennis as he sped through the snow.

All Ennis saw as he came staggering round to the rear of the flaming furnace that once was a house was a wild-eyed girl being led away by a group of sympathetic women. The colonel was bending over Bob Lanier, just emerging from his third involuntary plunge in the drifts and sputtering objurgations on his would be benefactors.

"In God's name, Lanier," almost wailed the colonel as at last that young gentleman, likewise singed and scorched and dripping, yet preternaturally cool for one just out of a blazing hell found his feet and faced his command—"In God's name, why didn't you jump when they told you? There was nothing but snowdrifts below."

"There was a colonel coming," said Bob, with a grin of mingled anguish and satisfaction, "who held that sort of thing to be breach of arrest."

As to the origin of the fire, Bob Lanier merely said that he had turned the lights low in the sitting room and, obedient to "Shoe's" orders, had gone up to his room, too watchful and amazed over what had occurred even to think of sleep—to think, in fact, of anything but the colonel's words. So absorbed was he as he slowly undressed he never noted the sounds from below until his room of a sudden seemed filled with smoke, and, throwing open the door, he was amazed to find the hallway ablaze, the stairs impassable. Running to his dormer window, he yelled fire at the top of his voice. Sentry No. 5 heard and came running down the back fence, saw the peril, let drive a shot and gave a yell that roused every one at the hospital, poor Rafferty, half-crazed, half-dressed, coming leaping along among the first.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Trooper Rawdon and sergeant Fitzroy, lovers of Dora Mayhew, quarrel in Dr. Mayhew's home. Mayhew and Lieut. Lanier interfere. Lanier, lover of Miriam, sends his civilian clothing to Rawdon for discharging Col. Button's orders.

Trooper Rawdon is ordered arrested for assaulting sergeant Fitzroy. He disappears. Miriam gets a fright at Sumter's home. Col. Button and Capt. Sumter quarrel over Lanier's case.

Fort Cushing has a blizzard. Maj. Scott, paymaster, is lost. Fitzroy accuses Rawdon of attacking Scott. Miriam's fright was caused by a thief in her room. Lanier gives whisky to two freezing soldiers, Quinlan and Cassidy. Quinlan finds Rawdon's cap at Lanier's house.

Detectives investigate the thief's invasion of Miriam's room. Scott is found. Kate Sumter and Miriam refuse to talk about the thief. Col. Button sends for Lanier.

Lanier denies writing unfriendly articles about Button. Button accuses him of leading his civilian clothing to Rawdon. Fitzroy produces the clothing found in Rawdon's room in town. Button also accuses Lanier of leaving his quarters while in arrest. Lanier narrowly escapes death by fire.

Dora Mayhew elopes with Rawdon. Fitzroy steals Lieutenant Foster's team and pursues. The elopers are caught by Lanier and his friend Ennis.

Fitzroy tries to arrest Rawdon, but Ennis lets him and his bride, Dora, go. Col. Riggs arrives to try Lanier on Button's charges. Capt. Sumter accuses Lanier of being Miriam's thief. Miriam declares she knows the author of the newspaper articles Lanier is accused of writing. Lanier tells her how Lanier befriended Lowndes, Miriam's scapegrace cousin.

INQUEST HELD UP BY THE CORONER
Officer Awaits Location of Man Who Was With Ross McDaniels.

Pending the location of Jack McCabe, who was with Ross McDaniels, Mrs. Marie Cooper and her daughter, Miss Agnes Suggs, Friday night prior to the time that McDaniels was found dead, justice McClintock has postponed the hearing of further testimony in the case.

McDaniels was reported to have committed suicide, but when found his hands were lying over his breast, a revolver was held in his right hand, and there was a bullet hole over his right ear. No powder burns, however, were discernible.

McDaniels' body was viewed at 404 West Overland Friday night, and has been expressed to his old home at Mineral Wells, Tex., for interment. He was a barber employed at the Poodle Dog shop.

AMUSEMENTS.

WHITESIDE IN "MELTING POT."
Walker Whiteside and company will come to the El Paso Wednesday, Oct. 26, and matinee Oct. 27, in Israel Zangwill's play, "The Melting Pot." Manager Rich says: "The play is one of the best sensations in theatrical circles, and has created discussion and interest that are steadily growing in scope and intensity. The plot carries with it moments and situations of great dramatic worth and the story is one that can readily be appreciated by any of the citizens of this country, which is typified as the great melting pot of the world. The prices are: Night, $2.00, $1.50 and $1.00. Matinee: Lower floor, $1.50; entire balcony, $1.00."

THE CRAWFORD THEATER.
"The Bondsman," the new offering at the Crawford theater, has pleased one of the largest audiences ever seen in the Crawford theater. Manager Rich says: "The play is a good one and is full of pathos and comedy, which is happily blended. One minute you are on the verge of tears and the next in a spasm of laughter. The principal characters are ably handled by Mr. Gagnon, Mr. Donnaway, Mr. Hodgkins, Mr. Hanna, Miss Pollock, Miss Burd, Miss Wimmer and Miss Hodgkins. Special attention has been paid to the staging, it being the best scenic production seen at this house in a long time. If you enjoy a good melodrama, don't miss 'The Bondsman.' Seats are on sale for the entire week at the Crawford box office. Don't forget the Wednesday and Saturday matinees—prices, 15, 25 and 35 cents."

A SPECIAL WHITESIDE MATINEE
A special matinee has been arranged for Thursday, Oct. 27, for Walker Whiteside, "the dramatic event of the season." The prices for a matinee will be $1.50 lower floor and the entire balcony $1.00. The matinee will start at 1 o'clock sharp, and manager Rich says he is sure in time, as no one will be seated while the curtain is up.

THE MAJESTIC THEATER.
There will be a new bill at the Majestic tonight, full of good comedy, good singing and dancing, with pretty chorus numbers, handsome wardrobe and show-stopping effects. The manager says two shows are given nightly. The prices are 10 and 25 cents.

MUSICAL POSTPONED.

Mrs. James Hunter Lenoir and Miss Stanhope have changed their musical from Wednesday, October 26, to November 2.

Hot Chocolate with whipped cream and cake. Elite Confectionery Co.

In the amended motion, it will also be alleged that Judge Clarke acted improperly when he refused to give to the jury the instructions submitted by the attorneys for the defense. Judge Clarke, who is at present in San Antonio, is expected to return Tuesday.

BITULITHIC COMPANY GETS MONEY FOR PAVING.

Santa Fe Street Property Owners Given Until Nov. 25 to Protest at Being Assessed for Paving.

For the paving of East Missouri street, the Bitulithic company was allowed $26,154.06 at a special meeting of the council Saturday afternoon, and an ordinance providing for the paving of South Santa Fe street from First to the Santa Fe railroad reservation was approved. The action was based on the report of city engineer Todd, stating that the work would amount to $14,054.33.

Owners of property abutting on the street to be paved have been ordered to appear before the council on November 25 to show cause why they should not be assessed for the work. A warrant for $58.54 interest on warrants held by the Rio Grande Valley Bank & Trust company, was also allowed at the Saturday afternoon meeting.

THEY ACTUALLY DO THE WORK

Food Eaten Is Worthless Unless Digested—Some Stomachs Must Have Help.

Food taken into the stomach which, from the nature of the food or the condition of the stomach, is not digested, is worse than no food at all. This is a true statement as far as it goes, and a great many dyspepsias go only too far with their reasoning. They argue with themselves that because their stomachs do not do the work given them, they must eat less and work; in other words, they must be starved. It would be just as sensible for a business man who is unable to do all his work to cut down his business to his own capacity as it is for a man to starve himself to relieve his stomach. The sensible business man employs help and goes forward with his business. Likewise the sensible dyspeptic will employ help for his stomach and give his body proper nourishment.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets actually do the work assigned to them. They relieve weak and overburdened stomachs of a great portion of the digestive action. Their component parts are identical with those of the digestive fluids and secretions of the stomach and they simply take up the grind and carry on the work in the same way as a good, strong, healthy stomach would do it.

On this account Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are perfectly natural in their action and effects. They do not cause any unnatural or violent disturbance in the stomach or bowels. They themselves digest the food and supply the system with all the nourishment contained in what is eaten and carry out Nature's plans for the sustenance and maintenance of the body.

How much more sensible is this method than that employed by many sufferers from weak stomachs. By this means the body and brain get all the good, nutritious food they need to do their duty. He could not possibly be in proper working condition by starving himself, or by employing some unfledged, insufficient food that does not contain enough nutriment for a year-old baby. A strong man doing strong work must be properly fed and this applies to the brain as well as the body.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, by relieving the stomach of its work, enable it to recuperate and regain its normal health and strength. Nature repairs the worn and wasted tissues just as she heals and knits the bone of a broken limb, which is of course not used during the process of repair.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a box and they are the only article that the druggist does not try to sell something in the place of that "just as good." Their unqualified merit
